2014: Ben Bauman Award for Excellence, International Association for Computer Information Systems. Dr. Jean Pratt, an associate professor of information systems at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, is the recipient of the 2014 International Association for Computer Information Systems Ben Bauman Award for Excellence. She will be presented with the award at the association's international conference in Las Vegas, NV on October 3, 2014.

The IACIS Ben Bauman Award for Excellence recognizes a faculty member who has compiled an outstanding record of professional service, teaching, and scholarship, and has made significant contributions to their university and their profession. In the nomination letter for this award, Pratt is described as "someone who has worked diligently to deliver quality educational experiences for her students, continually produces significant scholarship and publications, and has made a commitment to advancing her profession through her participation in professional organizations and conferences."

2012: 2012 Certificate of Recognition for Contributions to Students, Student Support Services Program, UWEC. This certificate was in recognition that I "made a significant difference" in the lives of first-generation and low-income students on campus.

2012: Authors Celebration, Office of Sponsored Research: University of Wisconsin--Eau Claire. My research on Bibliometrics was showcased at this university celebration of scholarly research.

2011: Excellence in Service Learning, University of Wisconsin--Eau Claire. Dr. Jean A. Pratt, associate professor in the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire Department of Information Systems, was one of the faculty members selected to receive the 2011 UW-Eau Claire Excellence in Service Learning as a Faculty/Academic Staff Member award.
